Ana Maria Tzekov

Artistic Director at Centre des Arts Pluriels Ettelbruck | Opera | International MBA Alumni

At the International MBA, I didn't leave the art world behind. I learned to see it through a new lens, bridging creativity and corporate thinking. Courses in organisational psychology and self-development became mirrors, helping me lead from within before leading others. This journey reshaped not only how I think, but how I show up — with intention, empathy, and a renewed belief that leadership, like art, is an evolving, creative act.

Frédérique Perrein

Head of Faculty Administration, Faculty of Science, Technology and Medicine at the University of Luxembourg | International MBA Student

I joined the International MBA to give new momentum to my career and develop skills for growth in my current role and beyond. The in-person format suited my professional life far better than a remote programme. After 13 years in academia, it opened my eyes to the mindset of commercial organisations and strengthened my confidence through leadership, marketing, finance, and impactful presentation skills. The management and leadership courses stood out, helping me better understand myself and navigate professional relationships with greater clarity.

In my classes, I emphasise that AI is more than a tool, it's a strategic shift affecting the whole organisation. Leaders must look beyond applying tools like ChatGPT directly and adopt a 360-degree view including ethics, cost, security, regulation, and human impact.

In Luxembourg's fast-changing business environment, this understanding is essential. HEC Liège offers a trusted platform with practical examples and interactive learning to help executives lead responsibly and confidently navigate AI's complexities.

Julian Troian
Talent Management & Development Lead, ING Luxembourg
Associate Faculty, International MBA

Leadership today isn't about having all the answers, it's about creating conditions for others to thrive. A true leader acts as a coach, fostering psychological safety to spark innovation and collective learning, moving beyond the outdated belief that leaders must control everything.

In a diverse classroom, I focus on universal human needs: being heard, supported, and recognised. By connecting to these drivers and adapting examples to each student's context, I encourage reflection and shared learning. Human skills are no longer "soft"; they're strategic. Emotional intelligence, active listening, resilience, empathy, and navigating ambiguity are now essential for effective leadership. The future of leadership is fundamentally human.
